TAKE ANOTHER LOOK

A day in the historical city Sheki

Sheki is one of the most authentic and historical cities in Azerbaijan. Located at about 4.5-hour drive from Baku, this city charms its visitors with its Silk Road ambiance with caravanserais and hammams, delicious cuisine, natural surroundings and hospitable people.

Talking about Sheki, the very first thing that comes to the mind is the Palace of Sheki Khans together with its historic centre which is on the UNESCO World Heritage List. Built in the shade of hundreds-year old plane trees, this 18th-century palace was the summer residence of Sheki khans – the-then rulers. One of the most distinctive features of this architectural pearl is its interior decorated with floral frescoes and shebeke windows made by filling wooden lattices with tiny glass pieces without using any nails and in a magical manner a ray of lights comes through in.

Another must-visit spot is the Karvansaray hotel established within a 18th-century caravanserai where you can feel the ancient Silk Road vibe while having the best of local sweets and enjoying the much famous tea culture in Azerbaijan. Speaking of sweets, you will notice that there are many sweet shops in the streets of Sheki. Quite famous for having a sweet tooth, locals here are masters in preparing some of the best sweets such as bamiya and halva. Bamiya are fingers of dough draped in syrup while Sheki's signature halva is a type of pakhlava made of very thin dough layers packed with ground nuts, syrup, saffron and spices. Especially the latter reminds of a true work of art, and you can take it home as a great souvenir in lovely gift boxes.

Sheki is also known for its crafts. Passed from generation to generation, craftsmanship is visible at every corner of the city. One such experience is the above-mentioned shebeke making.

TAKE ANOTHER LOOK

You can take a short walk from the Sheki Fortress, find yourself at a shebeke workshop, and see how thousands of colourful stained glass pieces are brought together to create a unique piece of craft used in windows and mirrors. Although silk craftsmanship is developed in various regions around Azerbaijan, it is no coincidence that Sheki stands out prominently when it comes to this niche. Sheki is the ancient land where the art of kelaghayi (silk headscarf) has been passed down from generation to generation, and it is also listed on UNESCO's Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity. When you are in Sheki, visit Sheki Silk Factory to observe the live production process of silk products and soak up the secrets of kelaghayi craftsmanship. You can also visit the workshop of Amiraslan Shamilov on M.A. Rasulzade Avenue to witness the dyeing and decoration process of scarves and learn the intricacies of this craft. While we are on the craftsmanship, it is highly recommended to visit the House of Craftsmen which serves as a showroom and shop window for local arts and crafts, which include embroidery, and papaq (hat) among others.

For another local experience, you can visit hammams that have been catering to cleansing of body and mind. Among them there are ones operating since the 19th century, and they still carry the spirit of the past. After full relaxation at one of these exquisite hammams, you can end this memorable day by enjoying the hearty dish piti at a restaurant surrounded by beautiful natural landscapes.

Iftikhar constantly integrated sustainable practices into the operations. There are several environmental activities implemented, amongst which are – its staff were given reusable bags made of the hotels' discarded linens to avoid the use of plastic bags; reduce waste to landfill through waste segregations system. The recyclable waste materials are sent to organizations that will help to convert these into useful ones, i.e., our PET waste bottles are converted into yarn through the DGrade Simply Bottle Campaign. While the other wastes like cans, cartons, use gadgets are given to Emirates Environmental Group.

As a testament of sustainability practices, Bahi Ajman Palace Hotel achieved the Green Key certification. Additionally, Bahi Ajman Palace Hotel bagged the Hotel of the Year 2021 for Green Initiative and Coral Beach Hotel Sharjah as the Hotel Team of the Year 2021 at the ME Hospitality Excellence Awards.

Continuing Iftikhar's journey to sustainability, Coral Beach Resort Sharjah is on its way to a "Plastic-Free Drinking Water", replacing plastic bottles with a reusable glass bottle with complete bottling system that allows proper cleaning and refilling.
